MAD MATCH – NATURE’S STRANGEST RELATIONSHIPS

50' (ENG, GER)

They may take advantage of others or live in symbiotic harmony – our planet is filled with every possible type of strange, wild relationship!

From desert to jungle, there's an infinite parade of impossible relationships that defy imagination. Oxpeckers that attach themselves to giraffes and zebras; Aztec ants that defend their host plant against intrusive monkeys; banded mongooses that pick warthogs clean; langurs and deer that join forces against their common enemy, the Sri Lankan leopard; and fish that hide amongst stinging tentacles.
