Berlin film author and art historian Grit Lederer takes us along as she traces the complex history of Botticelli. Lederer often visits the impressive collection of Botticelli's pieces in the Gemäldegalerie, and analyzes how his iconic works still influence art and advertising today. Experts explain the unique characteristics of his artistic style and find answers to why he was initially forgotten after his death. Botticelli's artworks are responsible for inspiring many current-day contemporary artists, such as the French Orlan and the American Michael Joaquin Grey, who demonstrate how they are strongly motivated by Botticelli's art. The result is a film that traces Botticelli's genius from Florence, Paris, New York, and all the way to Berlin.

The Big Deal With Sneakers

A large crowd of people is being held back by security personnel. This is not a public demonstration, but rather the sales launch of a Nike sports shoe. Hundreds of people want to secure a pair, which can be sold one hour later on the internet for over 1,000 €. "Sneakerheads" are resellers of rare limited-edition shoes, and their business can be extremely profitable. A sneakerhead can make over one million turnover per year through resale. However, not everybody benefits from this. Shoe collectors complain about the constant greed for money, which drives the prices up. We accompany sneaker lovers on their journey to success and learn how the hype around sneakers has emerged, how the streetwear business functions, and who the real winners are.

China and the USA are jumping ahead on digitalization, leaving countries like Germany behind; both economically and politically. Some of the most valuable companies in the world are technological platform companies from the USA and China. But is there room for other nations in this competitive space? We take a look behind the scenes of the rapidly growing digital industry and explain how customer data can be used to improve its services. What does it mean for the economy when online platforms become increasingly powerful and data becomes more valuable? How can power be controlled? How does Germany intend to shape this transformation? We accompany Dorothee Bär, Minister of State for Digital Affairs, as she takes us to this "unknown territory" in Germany.

Popular destinations attract thousands of tourists every year. Consequences of the tourism boom can be seen around the globe by the striking gap between locals and tourists: unaffordable housing, low wages and rationed drinking water. The authors themselves are travelers, renting accommodation in tourist hotels, and shooting inconspicuously. The reportage camera is always supplemented by landscape shots and drone flights, so that the beauty of the travel destination is captured in addition to the local problems. Take a look at some of the negative impacts of tourism - the aim is not to spoil travelling, but to sharpen the awareness of other cultures and environments.

They are forbidden yet seductive. Drugs have always raised a certain level of fascination and curiosity, and every day, more people give into this fascination. Although the production, distribution, and consumption are prohibited in almost every country in the world, there have never been more drugs in circulation than today. The "war on drugs" declared by the USA in 1972 seems to have failed, but Portugal may be on track to a solution. What else can be done? Is a legislation that legalizes all drugs realistic, and what would be the consequences?

The Rise of Slow Fashion

HD

› 30' (GER, ENG subs) › 2020 › NZZ

A daunting estimate of 100 billion new clothing pieces are produced every year. The term "fast fashion" describes the trend of buying a new collection of clothing every week. Always more, always faster, and always cheaper. The "slow fashion" movement is fighting against this overexploitation, and it is gaining a strong following. The pressure is growing on manufacturers who mercilessly profit from fast fashion. Do we have to rethink fashion? Learn about the enormous resource consumption, and the passionate consumers who demand change.

Sacrifice Cassino! - The Hidden Truth

HD

- > 2 × 52', 1 × 120' (ITA, ENG subs)
- > 2020
- > SD Cinematografica

Was conquering Monte Cassino necessary to clear the road to Rome? Why didn't the landing at Anzio prevent the Monte Cassino bloodbath? Why didn't the allied forces immediately target Rome? Using never before seen photographic and cinematic imagery, unpublished documents, and CGI reconstructions, the destruction of Monte Cassino is brought to life for the viewer and is further enhanced by interviews with Italian, German, American, and English witnesses. Shot at the locations where the events took place, combined with emotional testimonies and skillful narration that create a powerful reaction, this high-quality production unveils the uncomfortable truths that have been buried for decades. A compelling narrative based on new documents reveals the tragic fate of the Abbey and tens of thousands of men. It is a shocking and dramatic truth.

In 1944 in Western Europe, the stage is set for the largest, most ambitious aerial offensive in history. On the night of June 6th, 4,000 aircrafts took off from England in just a few seconds. Never before had so many planes and gliders been mobilised towards one destination: Normandy. This offensive was prepared in the strictest secrecy over two years by British and American forces, in order to free the World from Nazi barbarism. Thanks to the work of historians, we follow the Normandy landings from an aerial perspective for the first time. We discover what went on behind the scenes of this historical air battle, for example in one of the most secret bunkers of the Second World War in Uxbridge, and meet its most emblematic heroes.

When Sissi fled to the water city of Venice in November 1961, she did not receive a warm welcome. The population of the Serenissima eagerly anticipated the end of the Habsburg's foreign rule. We set off on a journey to follow the traces of Sissi's visit and witness the cliché-labeled young empress from an entirely new perspective: as a self-confident woman, who did not shy away from asserting her dominance against an emperor. We undertake gondola rides, and roam the gardens of Venice. For the first time in history, the gates of the mysterious Giardino Eden open for a film team at the Giudecca. Historical details and interviews with experts take us through one of the most important periods of Sissi's life.

Berlin 1945 tells the story of liberation, defeat, and reconstruction in a city transformed from a theatre of war into a field of ruins. Through the eyes of the victors and the vanquished, Berlin 1945 reveals a multi-layered transformation of a city and its inhabitants. With surprising, never before seen archival footage, we reconstruct the lives not only from those liberated from concentration camps and occupied countries, but also from Germany's followers, silent masses, and perpetrators. We create a fast-paced collage of testimonies from this period, giving voice to Soviet, US, UK and French soldiers as well as the German population anxiously awaiting the outcome of the fighting.

Discover the story of Wilm Hosenfeld, a Nazi officer best remembered today for having saved "the Pianist" in Roman Polanski's remarkable film. Recent findings have revealed that over the course of the war he actually saved about sixty people, Jewish and Polish alike. Before joining the Wehrmacht, Hosenfeld was principal of the school in the German Village Thalau, which is currently debating if he should be remembered as a local hero. Many residents would rather not deal with the questions his story raises about their past. However, there is a minority that want to commemorate Hosenfeld by naming the school after him. The passionate debate forces skeletons out of closets, reflecting the diverse and often conflicting ways that Germany deals with its past.

Germany's Mystic Forest

› 52' (ENG, GER) › Release: Summer 2020 › Tesche Documentary Filmproduction, WDR

Dark green, impenetrable forests cover a landscape with secluded valleys and rugged mountain ridges. 2,000 rivers and streams dig deep into the underground and transport their water into the Wupper, otherwise known as "Germany's Wild Amazon." These forests and rivers are home to diverse ecosystems. Martens, badgers, wild boars, hares, deer, wolves, and many more creatures find shelter in these parts. Accompany us on a journey where we explore every corner of this rugged region. Climb underground into the Bergisches Land, through the vast hidden cave systems that sprawl far beneath the forests - or discover what lies beneath the water, as we dive into crystal clear streams and rivers filled with diverse flora and fauna.

The Secret of the Apes - Narrowing the Gap

Do chimpanzees really pass on their knowledge and skills to other group members and offspring? Recent research has supported this theory, meaning that man and ape are more similar than we have previously thought. We journey into the forests of Uganda while accompanying primatologists that guide us through their behavioral research on great apes. We observe the creative ways chimpanzees use their tools, along with their understanding of communication skills while foraging and hunting. Together with Jane Goodall we set out to find the extent of similarities between man and ape. Using captivating film footage of chimpanzees living in the wild, we show what science has not yet been able to explain.

An entire year of the life of orphan elephants is captured on film, where we witness them grow up and be reintroduced into the wild. The film showcases the David Sheldrick Wildlife Trust and its breeding and rehabilitation station for elephants. In two episodes, we are taken to two unique locations in Kenya and tell stories of the breeding, release, and conservation efforts of elephants. We use never before seen footage that perfectly shows the coexistence of elephants and the highly emotional relationships that elephant groups maintain. The result is a spectacular look at the wonderful animals and their habitat.

The primeval forest of Sarawak in the Malaysian part of Borneo is one of the oldest rainforests on Earth. In modern day, due to clear-cutting, the rainforest has shrunk by 90%. Despite this, there are still 40 tribes and ethnic groups living there, including the primitive people of the Penan tribe. They call Tong Tana their home, which means both forest and world at the same time. But this world of theirs is currently on the verge of extinction. Huge palm oil plantations are expanding further and further into the jungle and destroying the rainforests in the process. We accompany three Penan tribes who have been living in the rainforests and witness the different ways they cope with their changing lives.

Human by Chance? - The Gene That Made Our Brain Grow

HD

› 52' (ENG) › 2020 › Hoferichter & Jacobs, MDR

If we compare ourselves with our genetically closest living relatives, the chimpanzees, we have few physical advantages. We are far weaker, cannot move nearly as fast, and do not have the same climbing capabilities. Instead, humans excel in areas such as architecture, religion, science, language, writing, art, culture, and ideas. These achievements are due to our larger brain that contain billions of neurons. It was the rapid growth of our brain, originating about 2 million years ago, that allowed us to be the predominant species of the world. What caused this rapid growth of our cerebral cortex? Researchers worldwide have asked this question for many years, but now there finally seems to be an answer.

Hidden High Tech – Super-Technologies for the Mobility of Tomorrow

HD

› 30' (ENG, GER) › 2019 › Infokontor, motorvision

Mobility is a concept that humans have pondered over for centuries, if not millennia. While experts keep coming up with the same questions: How can we transport more people and freight? How do we make mobility as safe as possible? And most of all: how do we make it environmentally friendly? About 8 billion people around the world, want to enjoy mobility. About 4 billion people fly on planes each year. And about 1 billion cars drive on our roads. Cities are growing, traffic increasing. And environmental pollution is getting out of control. New environmental movements, like "Fridays for Future" and activists like Greta Thunberg denounce the state of affairs. There is little time to act. Climate change is man-made and almost impossible to stop. At the same time, digitalization radically changes entire industries and society as a whole. And that opens new opportunities. We enter the world of "hidden high-tech" – super technologies intended to make mobility and our cities safer and cleaner. Around the world, companies work on making manufacturing more efficient and environmentally friendly. We are visiting the Swiss company Oerlikon, that develops and makes products for the aerospace and automotive industries, e.g. with 3D printing in industrial standard - high tech which is hidden under the engine cover.
